The Lord who Cares

"For thirty years now, God has saved me. When I first believed, my simple hope was that God would heal my eyes. Later, as I came to know the Lord Jesus more, I understood He is the one true God, the Lord who saved my life. Over these many years, through weaknesses and sorrows, God has led me through. Though my eyes were not healed, God has watched over my life; my massage business and other aspects are going quite well. The pastor and brothers and sisters from the church often visit my shop, shepherding my spiritual life and leading me to partake in communion. Currently, my parents strongly oppose my faith and won't listen when I share the gospel with them. But I still honor my parents, as the Bible teaches me."

(Brother Wang)

- ✠ Pray for the Lord to watch over Brother Wang as he faces his parents' opposition, that he may stand firm in his faith. Pray for the Lord to strengthen his faith and spiritual life, enabling him to feel the Lord's protection and support in difficult times.

QR Code Fraud

Recently, over ten restaurants in Beijing fell victim to "ordering scams." After showing their payment QR codes to "customers," the restaurants found their accounts drained rather than paid. Scammers call claiming to book a table, then discuss payment via WeChat. They claim the shop's code isn't working and ask for another. During a video call, they instruct staff to point the phone at another device's payment code. Exploiting a loophole in WeChat and Alipay—where the "payment code" (for outgoing funds) is the default screen—the scammers take a quick screenshot to steal funds the moment the merchant switches screens.

("Beijing Daily WeChat", January 9, 2026)

- ✠ May the Lord look upon the industry, which faces enough hardship during economic downturns without being targeted by fraudsters. May the authorities strengthen anti-fraud education and urge payment platforms to fix these vulnerabilities promptly.

Friday

Seasoned as Salt

"When my husband asks me things, I often respond with impatience. I do know it is bad and my responses would harm our relationship and affect our children. I lead the choir in my church, and if I speak impatiently, I fail to glorify God and bring a negative influence to the church as well. This hinders me from serving God. I want to change so badly, but I fail and fail again whenever I rely on myself. I pray for God to help me speak kindly and control my emotions. I believe nothing is impossible with the Lord."

(Sister Jin)

- ✠ May the Lord grant Sister Jin a peaceful heart and wisdom to express love and patience. May her faith be strengthened as she grows in emotional management for the glory of His name.

Caring Ministry

In a remote mountain region, a young Tibetan believer with theological training has felt a calling to remain in his hometown. Alongside his parents, he shepherds the elderly and infirm believers in his tribe and assists the elderly throughout the village. Recently, he attended an acupuncture class led by an experienced practitioner of traditional Chinese medicine (TCM). This allowed him to treat his own physical ailments while equipping himself alongside believers from various regions. After completing his training, he traveled to distant mountainous areas to serve and witness to Christ's love. In those remote places, even a minor illness can require a one-to-two-day journey to find a doctor; serious cases requiring a trip to a major city are even more arduous.

- ✠ We give thanks for the dedication of this skilled Chinese medicine practitioner within the body of Christ. Those left behind in the mountains are mostly the elderly and "left-behind" children, who are in great need of such caring ministry. May the Lord provide for the needs of this work, protect the students as they master their skills, and may they spread Christ's love among the ethnic minorities in remote areas with evangelical fervor.

Saturday

Navigation of Grace

"As a child, I listened to Radio Liangyou with my mother. Though I didn't understand much then, the seeds of the Gospel were sown in my heart. Because of that companionship, I was not led astray by secular values when I left home to work in my teens. Many female colleagues sought to marry for money or pursue wealth at any cost. Honestly, my heart wavered. One day, returning to my dormitory, I turned on the radio. I remember clearly the host asking: 'Will you hold fast to the values of the Heavenly Kingdom, or follow the values of the world?' I burst into tears. It was God using the program to remind me and keep me from falling."

(Sister Zhu)

- ✠ May the Lord preserve Sister Zhu's resolve, that she may hold fast to her faith and the values of the Kingdom amidst worldly temptations. We give thanks for the spiritual company and guidance she receives through Radio Liangyou. May her testimony serve as an inspiration to many.

Gospel Broadcasting

- 1 Thematic Website: Due to the high volume of traffic to the station's resource library, we reorganize it into smaller, more accessible modules. Currently, the "Devotions & Preaching" website has been launched, aggregating resources with corresponding text. The "Exegesis & Bible Study" website integrates several Bible teaching programs, alongside a dedicated space for listener interaction.
- 2 New Courses: Liangyou Theological Seminary has completed and launched several new courses on schedule. We pray these will be a help to our audience, equipping them to better serve the church the Lord loves. May the Spirit of the Lord guide the participating believers to know Him more deeply.

*"The Lord is near to all who call on him,
to all who call on him in truth."*

(Psalm 145:18)

PRAYER NEWSLETTER

Feb/Mar 2026

Dear Warriors in Christ,

Recently, an app in China called "Dead Yet?" (a.k.a. Demumu) has exploded in popularity. It requires users to log in once a day to "report safety." If a user fails to log in for several consecutive days, the system automatically sends an alert to their pre-registered emergency contacts. Developed by three Gen Z programmers and released for free last summer, downloads have soared in just six months.

Why has "Dead Yet?" gone viral? It seems to strike a chord with a deep-seated need in many modern hearts: the need to be seen, respected, and protected. There are at least 200 million people living alone in China, and research indicates that over one-third of them socialize less than once a week on average. These solitary individuals need care and companionship, and this app relieves them of the anxiety of dying alone.

This brings to mind the motto of Radio Liangyou: "Heart-to-heart, Hand-in-hand." Our hope is to walk alongside our listeners, becoming companions on their journey of faith.

"My mother rested from her earthly labors on December 17th. Mom listened to Radio Liangyou Radio from a young age, and she introduced it to me as well. I also love the station and listen to it often. She truly loved you all; everyone in our family can testify to this. Thank you for being willing to walk this path of service!"

Once again, I express my thanks to you. May the Lord lift up His countenance upon you!"

Equipping Disciples

“More than 30 years ago, I was chosen by Jesus. Without hesitation, I committed myself to serving Jesus. I visited other villages to share the gospel, and I was truly joyful when I saw people repent. Along the way, I realized my Biblical knowledge was far from sufficient, so I longed even more to equip myself. I, thus, joined my church’s discipleship training. The church sent me to other places to establish churches, and later on I became a co-worker involved in training missionaries. Over the past years, I have devoted myself to disciples training. Dozens of those trained now serve across the country, and some are cross-border missionaries. All of these continue to stir me to contribute more for God.”

(Sister Meizi)

✠ May the Lord grant Sister Meizi wisdom and faith, enabling her to be strengthened and further equipped in disciples training. May her service inspire more people to know the Lord, and may the gospel ministry continue to bear lasting fruits.

Miracle Drug

Recently, “Ginseng, Bitter Melon, Buckwheat, Mulberry Leaf Extract” has been a hot seller across major platforms, touted as a so-called “miracle drug for lowering blood sugar.” Many elderly patients, trusting the advertising, bought it only to find that it not only failed to control their blood sugar but delayed medical treatment. Reporters found that the product’s category was labeled as a sports nutrition food, and the top three ingredients listed were edible glucose, maltodextrin, and corn starch. The “miracle drug” is merely a hook: the seller arranges so-called “experts” to instruct customers on how to take it and then conducts one-on-one selling / marketing, and they promote more expensive customized treatment packages, claiming they can “cure diabetes.”

(“CNR The Voice of China”, January 13, 2026)

✠ May the Lord awaken the conscience of these merchants so they will stop engaging in profiteering that harms lives. May the authorities take proactive enforcement action and take effective legal actions.

Monday

Pass on the Flame

“I was blessed to join a mission trip to a remote mountainous area, where we met the descendants of earlier missionaries. Many people are still serving quietly. Although there are many challenges, they cannot allow the flame of the gospel to grow dim. They have taken in some orphans — caring not only for their daily needs but also teaching them spiritual truths. All of us were deeply moved. As we visited different places, we found many young brothers and sisters doing meaningful work in difficult conditions, and I greatly admire them. It left a profound impression on me. After returning, I shared their stories in various churches, and we have been striving to support their ministry.”

(Brother Xu)

✠ May the Lord bless the missionaries and brothers and sisters who serve quietly in remote regions. Grant them strength, so that the flame of the gospel may continue to burn. May Brother Xu’s testimony inspire more people to support this important ministry.

Drink and Drive

Spring Festival is often the peak period for drink-driving violations. Some drivers believe that if they drank at noon, it is safe to drive at night; or that if they drank the day before, it is safe to drive the next morning—yet they are still found to be driving under alcoholic influence. The police explain that the rate at which alcohol is metabolized varies from person to person and is affected by factors such as the amount consumed, the alcohol content, and individual physique. And, it is common that “the person is awake but the alcohol hasn’t worn off”. Many may think that e-bikes are slower and less danger. Losing physical control of the body, slower reactions, and impaired judgment—these dangers caused by alcohol do not discriminate by vehicle type; they are all drink-driving.

(“CCTV News App”, January 8, 2026)

✠ May the Lord grant drivers self-control so they will not drink drive. May the relevant authorities strengthen education on drink-driving and step up enforcement checks during the holiday season.

Tuesday

Foster Learning

“I was called by God to be a “fisher of men”. But my knowledge of the Bible was seriously lacking. When I encountered interference from heretical teachings, I felt even more strongly that studying theology was essential. I attended a seminary, but after graduating I realized there was a gap between what was taught and the realities of serving. By chance, I came to know Liangyou Theological Seminary, what I learned here can be applied to the real setting, enabling me to serve with confidence and effectiveness. After graduating, I promoted the Liangyou programs in my church; I also promoted the program in the wider region, and more than 100 co-workers took part in the training.”

(Brother Du)

✠ Thanks be to the Lord for calling Brother Du, enabling him to effectively advance the teaching of Liangyou Theological Seminary in his ministry. May his efforts inspire more co-workers to participate in learning and become a strong force within the church.

Validation of the Strongest

On January 2, five people illegally crossed the “Aotai Trail”. One person made it down the mountain on their own, one was rescued, and three died. The Trail, traverses between Mount Ao in the Qinling Mountains and Mount Taibai, is known as one of China’s deadliest hiking trails. It features high altitude, long distances, difficulty to resupply, rapidly changing weather, and with many blind spots for communication. Some influencers promote completing the route as a “graduation ceremony for the strongest,” distorting its high death rate into a “proof of the strongest,” misleading many online users into blindly pursuing the thrill of conquering nature. People go based solely on passion, leading to an endless stream of accidents on the “Aotai Trail”.

(“People’s Daily WeChat”, January 8, 2026)

✠ May the authorities regulate those online platforms, and remove posts that incite others to engage in illegal and dangerous expeditions. May mountain-safety education can be strengthened.

Wednesday

Spiritual Awakening

“I am often busy with the trivial matters at home—my daughter-in-law had a baby, and my husband went off to plant fruit trees and vegetables. I was running back and forth to help, and I did not take part in church ministry, so my relationship with the Lord grew distant. As a result, I found that I couldn’t do anything well. I felt I had failed God and failed others. I came to deeply realize I must hold tight to the Lord’s hand, set aside more time to draw near to Him, and serve Him! I will not make excuses to keep myself away from the Lord. I repent deeply and ask the Lord to forgive my sins, and to help me always remember that He has always loved me. May I use the Lord’s teachings to guide my family and become a true helper to my husband.”

(Sister Gao)

✠ May the Lord help Sister Gao find balance in her busy life and rebuild an intimate relationship with Him. May her repentance bring freedom to her heart, and become a source of support to her family.

Livestreaming Industry

With increasingly diverse employment options today, the online livestreaming industry has attracted more than 38 million streamers. However, the contractual relationship between streamers and streaming platforms is often ambiguous. Many streamers sign an “influencer agency contract” rather than an employment contract. As of December 2024, the number of online livestreaming users reached 833 million, and the number of professional streamers grew by 1.5 times year on year. How to balance an employer’s competitive interests with streamers’ right to work has become a point of debate. Courts have suggested that liquidated damages for breaching non-compete agreements should be reasonable.

(“Workers’ Daily”, January 16, 2026)

✠ May such non-compete agreements be reasonably regulated to safeguard streamers’ rights. May God grant industry leaders wisdom to balance corporate trade secrets with streamers’ right to employment.
