Nurturing Marriage

"My husband used to attend church and support my ministry, but business life pulled him away from God. Seeing his life fall into worldliness filled me with anxiety. My husband did experience God's preservation—if it were not for God's grace, his life would have ended long ago. Yet whenever we talk about faith, he argues with me, even saying, 'You go to your heaven, and I go to my hell.' Church pastor helped me examine my own shortcomings and taught me how to nurture a marriage. I realized I had been very critical of him. Slowly, I began to change. As I became willing to transform, I truly thank God that I saw a change in my husband too. He now supports my church attendance and my tithes."

(Sister Zhang)

✠ May the Lord continue to move Sister Zhang's husband, strengthening his heart to return to the Lord. Grant her gentleness, that the couple may care for one another and serve with one heart.

The Waste Crisis

Recently, waste incineration power-generation facilities have been operating in many cities nationwide. Yet approximately 5% of incinerators are operating only about half the time. Some areas have even faced the awkward situation of "vying for trash." Meanwhile, rural areas face frequent illegal disposal issues, such as open dumping and sinkhole filling, which pollute the environment. As rural waste disposal shifts from landfilling to incineration, transport costs have skyrocketed. This leads remote areas to continue using landfills or open burning. Experts suggest that rural areas should not simply copy urban models but choose right paths suited to local conditions.

("CCTV News App", April 10, 2026)

✠ May the Lord grant wisdom to officials to better coordinate urban and rural waste management. May rural representatives communicate effectively with authorities to reflect practical issues, putting an end to illegal disposal methods.

Healed by Love

"I grew up amid my parents' shouting and scolding, which left me with a fear of social interaction. To gain my parents' approval and the recognition of others, I studied desperately. Though my grades were excellent, I was unhappy. I masked myself with a gentle exterior, but I was living a lie. After believing in the Lord, my life was completely transformed. Past wounds were healed by Jesus. I found the source of love and could finally face myself honestly. Through daily devotions, my relationship with Jesus grows closer, and my heart grows calmer. Though I still struggle with resentment toward my parents, I am learning to empathize with them. Christ is my goal; I am no longer bound."

(Sister Song)

✠ May the Lord heal Sister Song's inner wounds and grant her true peace. May she show grace and understanding toward her parents, and live in the freedom of Christ...

Staying True to the Mission

Nowruz is the Iranian New Year, celebrated by Muslims in the Middle East and Central Asia, as well as ethnic minorities like the Uyghurs in China. It is a time for spring plowing and beautifying the environment, lasting 3 to 15 days from March 21. Its name stems from ancient Persian for "Day of Spring Rain," symbolizing the victory of light over darkness. One coworker chose to stay behind after others departed, using the festival to prepare traditional foods for Uyghur friends and arrange visits to bear witness for the Lord. Another minister moved from the coast to the mountains of Yunnan, laboring alone in rural charity work—caring for children, supporting impoverished students, and traveling great distances to visit families.

✠ Many co-workers press forward despite challenges, so these people may see the true light. We pray for those who hold fast to the mission even under difficult circumstances. Even when most partners have left, they continue faithfully, working quietly and proclaiming the Lord's love to others.

Calling for Full-Time

"Coming from a science and engineering background, I was highly rational. When classmates shared the Gospel with me in my teens, I dismissed them, declaring I would never believe in Jesus. It wasn't until I was 40 that an older lady shared the Gospel and brought me to church. The Lord opened my heart, and I believed. Six months later, the Holy Spirit moved me to equip myself for ministry. Though I lacked biblical understanding then, the Spirit continued to move me for four years, and the calling grew stronger. Finally, I decided to enroll in the Liangyou Theological Seminary. After years of preparation, I was called to full-time ministry. A few years ago, I was ordained as a pastor; my responsibilities became even heavier."

(Brother Xin)

✠ May the Lord strengthen Brother Xin's pastoral calling. Pray that the Lord will add strength to Brother Xin, so that his ministry and teaching will bear abundant fruit, and that he will lead more souls to turn to the Lord.

Gospel Broadcasting

- AI Integration: To keep pace with the times, Radio Liangyou plans to integrate AI tools into our program management system this year to enhance promotion and curation. Please remember the efforts of our staff and partners.
- New LTS Courses: Beginning in March, the new LTS program The Voice of the Times has been broadcast, featuring multiple people whose lives have brought changes to the church and to mission work. This would help serving workers reflect on their faith and service. In May, the re-produced program New Believer Discipleship will also be broadcast, helping church pastors build a strategic plan for new believers and new life.

"The gospel of the kingdom will be preached to all the nations as a testimony to all peoples, and then the end will come."
(Matthew 24:14)

PRAYER NEWSLETTER

May/June 2026

Dear Warriors in Christ,

Recently, while reviewing the years of service of our staff, our supervisor discovered that many have been at FEBC Hong Kong for 10, 20, or even 30 years! We are amazed and grateful that they have given their best years to this ministry. In the commercial world, people change jobs constantly, but our colleagues have dedicated their lives to God. Our longest-serving member has been with us for 56 years—starting young and continuing to help even after retirement!

In the Bible, Moses and Joshua served for many years, but Caleb is a standout example. He said, "I was forty years old when Moses... sent me to spy out the land... but I followed the Lord my God wholeheartedly... Now, behold, I am eighty-five years old... I am still as strong today as I was on the day Moses sent me." (Joshua 14:7-11). Caleb's 45 years of service were defined by wholehearted devotion. He wasn't swayed by others or distracted by the world. He knew it was "the Lord who kept me alive these forty-five years" (Joshua 14:10).

Do we have this same resolve? When God gives a calling, we must move forward single-mindedly, trusting His promises. As FEBC Hong Kong approaches its 70th anniversary, we thank God for our many "Calebs." May we all be single-minded in ensuring the Gospel reaches every corner through broadcasting, so that all who have ears may hear.

Called to Move Forward

“I had been attending church with my mother since primary school, but over more than 10 years, my foundation in faith was never firmly established. When I was 23, I was deeply gripped by a hymn, and from that moment God began to open up my life. By His grace, I gradually stepped onto the path of serving Him. Over nearly twenty years of ministry, I have experienced all kinds of ups and downs, and at times I even wanted to give up. There was also a period when I shut myself away. Yet God allowed me to experience even more of His grace and provision.”

(Sister Au)

✞ May the Lord grant Sister Au strength to face the challenges and weaknesses she encounters in ministry. Also, may the Lord enable her to remain faithful to His calling, and continue to lead others to Him with a fervent heart.

Borrowing at a Tap

In recent years, many apps have reached the ceiling of user-growth dividends. As a result, app companies have begun monetizing massive amounts of user data and behavioral scenarios through financial services in order to maintain profit growth. Reporters tested more than twenty commonly used apps covering all aspects of daily life, and found that many of them had built-in loan portals. There are two major models: financial products operated directly by the platform itself, and loan-assistance services that direct users to third-party lenders. Borrowing, once something that required careful consideration, has now become a “convenient tap-away action”. Experts warn that users should “see things for what they are and borrow rationally.” They should never take out loans casually just for small discounts.

(“People’s Daily”, April 3, 2026)

✞ May the authorities engage with app companies that fail to operate according to proper standards, and require app-based lending services to comply with the law. May they also strengthen public education to help citizens develop sound financial values.

Suddenly Enlightened

“I have been listening to Radio Liangyou for more than ten years, and it has helped me tremendously. It has not only supported my spiritual growth but has also given me very practical help in daily life and in my relationships within the family. I created a group and shared the programs there for brothers and sisters to listen to. In the area of parenting, Liangyou has given me accurate guidance. Children should be brought to Christ from an early age, rather than being taught to regard academic performance as the most important thing. So many things that I did not understand before, I have now learned through Liangyou.”

(Sister Chan)

✞ May the Lord grant Sister Chan wisdom and gracious words, helping her remain steadfast in Christ-centered parenting and lead her children to be firmly rooted in the truth.

“Paid Release” of Animals

In some online livestreaming programs, hosts have turned the release of animals into a “business.” The more viewers tip, the more aquatic animals such as soft-shelled turtles and loaches are released. Within just a few minutes, hundreds of soft-shelled turtles were released into tributaries of the Yangtze River. These release activities are clearly priced. A reporter contacted one host, who said that the animals were purchased directly from agricultural markets. Experts pointed out that blind and concentrated release of animals can cause a sudden surge in local populations, triggering fierce competition for survival and disrupting the ecology. If invasive species without natural predators are involved, the food chain may be seriously damaged.

(“China Media Group”, April 4, 2026)

✞ May the Lord transform people’s hearts, so that the gospel may reach them and rescue them from the misconception of “earning merit” through such acts. May the authorities work together with livestreaming platforms to strengthen efforts against these businesses that harm the natural environment.

Tuesday

Footsteps of the Gospel

“More than 30 years ago, I believed in Jesus. After receiving theological training, I entered full-time ministry in church. Whenever I look back on those days of training, I feel a deep and unexplainable stirring in my heart. In the years that followed, I travelled across the country preaching and shepherding churches. Although there was no salary, several of us were filled with joy. More than 10 years later, I was sent by the church to pastor in another city, and we held the vision to plant churches in the city. I am willing to respond to God’s calling and offer myself to Him. Looking back on the path of my ministry, it has all been by the grace of God.”

(Brother Chan)

✞ May the Lord continue to lead Brother Chan in his gospel work in different places. Though he may not be materially abundant, may he be filled with spiritual joy and satisfaction. May the Lord enable his team to remain faithful to His commission.

“Apollo Go” Halted

In the early hours of April 1, Wuhan’s emergency call center received reports that several vehicles from the “Apollo Go” autonomous ride-hailing service had stopped in the middle of the road. One netizen said that he was trapped on an elevated road for two hours. Although the car doors could be opened, he did not dare to get out on the overpass. Customer service replied that the vehicle’s driving system had malfunctioned due to network issues. In the end, the passenger was able to leave safely after traffic police and Apollo Go staff arrived. Industry insiders analyzed that the stoppage of the Apollo Go vehicles was most likely caused by an unexpected situation that triggered the system’s safety self-check mechanism.

(“The Paper”, April 1, 2026)

✞ Give thanks that this disruption did not lead to more serious accidents. May the relevant authorities determine the cause of the incident, hold the service provider accountable for making improvements, and re-examine whether the current safety protections for autonomous driving are sufficient.

Wednesday

Strengthening the Foundation

“When I was a child, I casually fiddled with an old radio at home, and by chance I tuned in to a program from Radio Liangyou. As I listened to the messages in the programs, I felt that they were quite different from what was usually preached in church. They were rich and substantial teachings about faith. During those years, listening to the programs helped me build a firm foundation in my faith. Now, through the internet, I have once again been able to listen to Liangyou, and I treasure them as if I had found a priceless gift. Once again, I experience the same sense of wonder I felt when I first heard them. I thank God for continually leading me.”

(Brother Chu)

✞ May the Lord shepherd Brother Chu, so that through Liangyou his spiritual life may be nourished, his foundation in faith may be strengthened, and his spiritual life may continue to grow.

Social Security Card Scam

Recently, an elderly woman in her eighties received a call claiming to be a staff member of the “Hangzhou Social Security Bureau.” The caller told her that she had two medical insurance cards under her name and that she needed to cooperate in cancelling one of them. Under the caller’s guidance, she then downloaded a remote-control app and enabled the necessary permissions. Once the scammer obtained authorization, he immediately began transferring funds out of her account. After anti-fraud officers detected suspicious transactions, they quickly arrived at the woman’s home and cut off her phone’s internet connection. Afterwards, the Public Security Bureau stated that once a new social security card has been applied for and activated, the old card will automatically become invalid.

(“CCTV News App”, April 14, 2026)

✞ May the Lord provide more resources for community care, so that elderly people will have accessible help. May the authorities exercise greater care and foresight in handling public livelihood matters, so that loopholes will not be left open for fraudsters.
